VESTITUS ERUPTS TO INCREASE TERROR OF STRICKEN ITALIANS

Population In Panic As Ancient Killer Goes On Rampage

ROME, July 30.—Fresh terror panicked the population of earthquake-damaged Naples today as its ancient killer, Mount Vesuvius, suddenly shot huge volumes of smoke and tons of glowing cinders into the sky.

A heavy pall shortly clouded the city, bringing thousands of anxious residents to the streets and rooftops in alarm as the outpourings from the crater gave no sign of a letup.

First warnings that Vesuvius was again becoming restless were noted a few days ago when an ominous rumble and intermittent clouds of smoke spouted from the crater. The recent earthquake, it was believed, may have been a factor in preparing the way for new eruptions.

Meanwhile, work of reconstruction of the regions in south central Italy which was devastated by the earthquake last week went on with renewed vigor. The Italian cabinet council, which voted $5,200,000 as a first contribution to relief and reconstruction work of its 7,500 square miles of ravaged territory decided work should begin at once and be pushed with greatest speed in order to complete it by the time winter approaches.

Food shops have been re-opened in the stricken areas and all lines of communication have been restored.

An unofficial survey showed that at least 5,000 homes must be completely or partly rebuilt, which averages the government contribution at approximately $500 per house for reconstruction. This is considered an ample sum for construction of a presentable and modern home in the afflicted provinces.

Collection of taxes in the south central area also has been postponed to help the sufferers regain their financial standing. A decree was issued also postponing the payment of private debts. Immediate organization to complete the harvesting of crops was urged.

All injured have been removed from the stricken zone into general hospitals, and clearing of streets and highways has been completed. Troops will shortly be withdrawn from the recuperating regions.

WASHINGTON, July 30.—The most pronounced shift in population from town to town and city in the nation's history will be shown in the 1930 census, it was predicted today on the basis of preliminary returns to the census bureau.

The official figures will not only reveal with accuracy a trend that had been apparent with rapid industrialization of the United States in the last decade, but they will have an important bearing on the nation's future political history.

The census will not only be a basis for reapportionment of the national house of representatives, but it also will mean a change in the electoral college, which equals membership in congress, and will force realignment of state legislative districts.

The services, which were largely attended, consisted of a prayer and two verses from the twenty-third and twenty-seventh Psalms and closed with the singing of a hymn, "Abide With Me" by Clifford Cundard, Barnesville, O., a close friend of the late John Steele, Jr., son of Mr. Steele. Representatives of a number of old-established firms with which the Hooven and Allison Co. of which Mr. Steele was formerly president and general manager and at the time of his death was chairman of the board of directors, transacted business, were also in attendance. A profusion of flowers banked the rooms.

Frank L. Smith, Steele Poague, Russell Kimber and John E. Barlow, son-in-law of the deceased, all of Xenia; Palmer Meredith, head of the Steele-Meredith wholesale grocery concern at Springfield, and Mr. Cundard served as pallbearers. Interment took place in Woodland Cemetery.

The Hooven and Allison Co. mills and offices closed at 3 o'clock in the afternoon out of respect to the memory of Mr. Steele.

KIDNAP TWO WOMEN IN CHICAGO HOTEL

CHICAGO, July 30.—Two men, flourishing revolvers, entered the Barness Hotel early today and kidnapped two young women guests from their rooms.

Possing as police detectives, the gunmen made Andrew Blackman, the night clerk, show the way to apartment 116. Entering, they freed the two occupants, Mrs. Dorothy Doyle, 26, and Mrs. Eppa Davis, to accompany them. Both women were clad in night clothing.

One of the men struck Mrs. Davis on the head with his revolver.

WORLD'S SUPPLY OF WHEAT IS CONSTANT GOVERNMENT SAYS

Price Fifty Cents Lower; Will Add To Use Of Grain

WASHINGTON, July 30.—While the federal farm board is struggling with the problem of declining wheat prices and is assailed for its inability to stabilize prices, the department of agriculture announced today indications were that the world's supply of wheat for the 1930-31 season probably would be the same as it was last year.

There is a possibility, however, that it might be 100,000,000 bushels in excess if yields in the southern hemisphere, which cannot now be forecast, should be about average instead of low, as they were last year.

As the carryover from last season is about 100,000,000 bushels less than a year ago, this decrease would offset the increase in the crop.

Prices of cash wheat in the United States are now about fifty cents per bushel lower than they were a year ago, and these low prices will tend to stimulate the use of wheat for food and in many countries to increase human consumption. Increased consumption is likely to be augmented by improvement in business conditions, the report said.

"With total supplies about equal to those of last year, increases in consumption would further reduce the world carryover," the report said.

"World trade of the coming year will probably be increased not only by augmented consumption, but also through importing countries building up their stock."

Exports thus far in July indicate that world trade is already beginning to recover from recent low levels.

"The present burdensome carryover has its origin in the large world crop of 1927-28, which resulted in a large carryover into the crop year 1928-29. Very large crops in 1928-29 greatly increased the already large carry-over, and the world carryover last year was by far the largest on record.

MASSACHUSETTS IS HOLDING BIRTHDAY PARTY THIS SUMMER

"They (the Puritans) were a for themselves and how to act for themselves, and these qualities they extended from their political life because it was through their belief in that respect that they laid here the foundations for a free government."—Calvin Coolidge.

BOSTON, July 30.—Massachusetts is having a birthday party—"some" party.

The famous old lady is three hundred years old and her "party" and it's "some" party.

Parades, pageants, meetings, races, exhibits and in fact every kind of an event befitting a tercentenary celebration are being held throughout the Bay State.

The constant variety of features all over the Commonwealth, in more than 1000 organizations and groups, will continue until October, with the national convention of the American Legion in Boston as a befitting climax.

The Massachusetts Bay Tercentenary of 1930, modern celebration of an old event, does not stop with honoring pioneers and founders of three centuries ago but all this summer is honoring all those who have aided in the upbuilding of Massachusetts.

Railroads, steamship lines, hotels, motor buses and shore places report a heavy influx of visitors. Massachusetts is entertaining this summer more people than ever were here before in an equal time. Some think the number will reach ten million, but that's unofficial.

One of the first major events of the tercentenary was the arrival of the ship "Arbella," bringing to Salem harbor Governor John Winthrop and his company with the royal charter from England. Along with the reproduction of that celebrated historical event was the opening at Salem of a "pioneer village" made up of 350 inhabitants, including Indians. The "cavalcade" from the "Arbella" in colonial costume crossed the countryside to Boston, passing through ten cities and towns, the "Arbella" sailing to Boston, where it has been placed on exhibition.

Watertown, where the first session of the Massachusetts legislature was held had former president Calvin Coolidge as the guest of honor. "We must remember," he said, "that not only do we owe a debt of gratitude to those who came here 300 years ago but we owe an equal debt to the long line of people who have been coming here ever since that day."

One of the features of the Massachusetts 300th birthday party is a talking film history produced by a non-profit educational institution associated with Harvard University. It is called "Three Centuries of Massachusetts." The film is historically accurate, having been prepared by Professor Albert Bushnell Hart, of Harvard, distinguished authority on American history.

A lately organized official state commission for the tercentenary is busy planning two expositions of Massachusetts governmental activities for late September and early October.

The Boston tercentenary committee has arranged for three great street parades for July, August and September. The first will be a general civic, fraternal and business turnout. The second, August 16th, will be an historical pageant parade of which the main feature will be 100 specially constructed floats—a historical pageant on wheels. The third, September 17, will be an electrically illuminated night parade of floats depicting historical events.

Several celebrations have been held. Arlington held a Colonial celebration. Boston entertained the centennial Legion. Fall River held the pageant of Quequechau Newton held a "city beautiful" pageant. Great Barrington held a pageant entitled "The spirit of Massachusetts." Lowell celebrated "railroad centennial day." Cambridge reenacted with costume revolutionary events. Dorchester celebrated "Dorchester Day." A world alumni reunion was held in Cambridge. Northampton produced a play "Wilderness Rose." Revere citizens reenacted "The battle of Chelsea Creek."

Amazing Age of Turk Exceeded Many Times Historians Declare

By CHARLES STANTON

NEW YORK, July 30.—Exactly how long can a human being live?

Fresh interest in the question of longevity has just been aroused by the arrival in the United States of Zoro Agha—an aged, withered faced Turk, who claims that his years now total 156.

The appearance in America of this modern Methuselah has captured coastwide attention. Americans always lend an ear and an eye to anything bizarre or unique—witness the popularity of phenomena such as tree-sitting contests and endurance racing, laughing and talking contests.

When the ballyhoo of publicity that greeted this child of the eighteenth century and survivor of eleven wives dies down, scientists will examine him to determine if he is really as old as he says.

Many Rivals

Certainly history, past and contemporary, records the achievement by various individuals of an age commensurate to that of hardy Zoro Agha's.

Rafal Rabel, an Arab sheik, says that he is 157 years of age. A prominent physician of Starboul announced recently that he had found a 163-year-old woman named Fatma Harum.

Going back to other days we find the famous William Edwards of Cardiff, who died in 1787 at the ripe old age of 167. A Brazilian lady named Louise Truxo was supposed to be 174. Petrasch Zartan of Hungary firmly believed that on the day of his death he had passed no less than 185 years on earth.

In Shoreditch, England, lies the grave of Thomas Caron, whose tombstone records he passed away at the none-too-tender age of 207. Of course, the engraver may have made a slight mistake and meant to carve the number of years as 107.

However, we will return to our visitor, Zoro Agha, although he seems a mere boy compared to the late Mr. Caron. Mr. Agha's first day in New York could be considered a very strenuous one for a youth of 78—just half his age.

Boxed Two Rounds

Besides receiving distinguished visitors and admiring girls and posing for cameramen on the roof of the Woolworth Building, Mr. Agha sparred two rounds with his great-great grandchild, Ahmet Mussa, lightweight champion of Turkey. Zoro Agha, an abstainer from liquor in either brewed or distilled form, came here on an invitation of Prohibitionists, who wished to use him as an exhibit of what shunning the wicked bottle can do to help prolong human life.

He is being examined by medical men, seeking the secret which Ponce de Leon searched for in vain hundreds of years ago. Mr. Agha has declared he will not go into a circus sideshow, but has made the long jaunt from his native Turkey just to help science prolong the normal life of men and women from three-score and ten. But he expects to be paid.

Meeting the Needs of Millions of People

The low-priced automobile has brought greater opportunity and added hours of recreation to millions of men and women

BECAUSE the automobile is such an important factor in the lives and prosperity of so many people, the purpose of the Ford Motor Company is something more than the mere manufacture of a motor car.

There is no service in simply setting up a machine or a plant and letting it turn out goods. The service extends into every detail of the business—design, production, the wages paid and the selling price. All are a part of the plan.

The Ford Motor Company looks upon itself as charged with making an automobile that will meet the needs of millions of people and to provide it at a low price. That is its mission. That is its duty and its obligation to the public.

The search for better ways of doing things is never ending. There is ceaseless, untiring effort to find new methods and new machines that will save steps and time in manufacturing. The Ford plants are, in reality, a great mechanical university, dedicated to the advancement of industry. Many manufacturers come to see and share the progress made.

The greatest progress comes by never standing still. Today's methods, however successful, can never be taken as wholly right. They represent simply the best efforts of the moment. Tomorrow must bring an improvement in the methods of the day before. Hard work usually finds the way.

Once it was thought impossible to cast gray iron by the endless chain method. All precedent was against it and every previous experiment had failed. Many men had shut their minds to the possibility of change. But fair prices to the public demanded that wasteful methods be eliminated in this operation. Finally the way was found and old methods gave place to new.

A better way of making axle shafts saved thirty-six million dollars in four years. A new method of cutting crankcases reduced the cost by $500,000 a year. The perfection of a new machine saved a similar amount on such a little thing as one bolt. Then electric welding

GOVERNOR COOPER OFFERS HIS BEST WISHES FOR COUNTY FAIR

Governor Myers Y. Cooper, himself long interested in fairs, has endorsed the coming Greene County Fair in a recent letter to J. Robert Bryson, secretary of the Greene County Fair.

Governor Cooper's letter follows: To the People of Greene County:

As a friend and earnest advocate of the continuance and promotion of county fairs—attested by years as an active member of state and county fair associations—I heartily command YOUR FAIR to all citizens of Greene County.

The real fair is more than the beating of tom-toms, or the use of a "bag of tricks." It properly reflects a county on parade—promotes good will, prestige, progress.

It heartens agriculture—educates youth—raises standards socially and commercially. It pays dividends in education, entertainment and county morale.

I congratulate The Greene County Agricultural Society and people of the county, on the reduction of the indebtedness against the Society, and the bright prospects for the future.

Cordially yours,
Myer Y. Cooper,
Governor.

SAMUEL CLINE DIES FROM LONG ILLNESS

A Constructive Public Record

1. Congressman Brand's plan to provide a national fund to aid rural schools will likely win. President Hoover's commission to study the problem has just announced: "Mr. Brand's evidence as to the need of federal aid in rural schools has converted us to his idea." This plan will assist every school in the Seventh Congressional District.

He was born December 20, 1850 and had spent his entire life in Greene County, residing in Jamestown and later moving near Yellow Springs. He had made his home with his daughter for the last twelve years. His wife, Sarah, preceded him in death a number of years.

Surviving children: Charles, Alpha; Roy, Jamestown and Mrs. Lackey, at whose home he died. Mrs. Anna Sesser, Madison, O., and Abe Cline, Jamestown are a sister and brother who survive as well as eight grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at the Lackey home Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock with burial in the Jamestown Cemetery.

YOUTH INJURED AS CART TURNS OVER

Daniel Ford, 13, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Ford, east of Jamestown, was recovering Wednesday from bruises and shock he received when he was thrown from a small cart Tuesday afternoon about 1:30 o'clock.

The pony ran for a distance of about half a mile, when it turned into the lane at the home of Oscar Weiler, on the Watkins Road. When the cart turned it upset, throwing Ford out.

Dr. R. L. Haines, Jamestown, was called and treated Ford for a few bruises and shock, but he had recovered from his fright Wednesday.

The pace-setters

KEPPING-UP-WITH-THE-JONESES is no mere vagary of the cartoonist. It is an actual condition in every city, town, village and hamlet of this great country.

There is a Jones in every locality to set the pace. But the average Jones is not a rich man—far from it. He has a good job, he dresses well, he is a good talker and splendid company. Jones is always the gentleman, welcomed at business conventions, public dinners and social gatherings alike. Mrs. Jones is envied as a successful hostess. Every woman in her set, and out of it, seeks bids to her bridge parties and other social functions. Their home is cozy, tastefully furnished and provided with most of the modern conveniences.

"How do they do it?" ask the neighbors. "We have as much money as they. Socially we are their equals." But without seeming to try, without putting on any "dog," the Joneses set the pace just the same. They have learned from reading advertisements how to have many desirable things at a little cost. They keep up to date on almost everything—just reading advertisements.

Keeping-up-with-the-Joneses is a comparatively easy matter—other things being equal. Read the advertisements regularly. Study them. Remember what you learn. Then, when you are in the market for anything, you will know, just as they do, what kind to buy. Soon you'll find yourself saving money, yet having more than you ever had. You'll find folks wondering how YOU do it. Oh, yes! It's fairly easy, if you make the most of your opportunities.

Advertisements are opportunities . . . study them to your own advantage

Your support and influence at the Republican Primary in his behalf, Tuesday, August 12, 1930, will be deeply appreciated.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

THE HEART AND ITS TREASURE—Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth, where moth and rust doth corrupt, and where thieves break through and steal. But lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through and steal: For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also.—Matthew 6:19, 20, 21.

DOMESTIC SUGAR

The decision of the federal farm board to call a conference of domestic sugar producers for the purpose of developing a national marketing program for both cane and beet sugar products is to be recommended. The domestic sugar industry is entitled to the same consideration from the farm board as other branches of agriculture. All that prevents the gouging of the American consumer by the foreign sugar monopolists is the sugar grown on American cane and beet fields. The development of a strong domestic competition for imported sugars is a boon to the nation in time of peace, a safeguard in time of war.

A slight increase in the tariff rates on imported sugar was obtained at the last session of congress, against the strident opposition of those who declared that it would mean a vast increase in the upkeep cost of the American breakfast table. This gloomy prophecy has not been fulfilled; but it is well to remember that one of the strongest arguments brought against increasing the protection thrown about American sugar at the border was that the domestic sugar industry should bolster its position by internal improvements. An industry should not be accorded protection, which leaves any stone unturned that might enable it to help itself. The ultimate cost to the consumer is what determines whether he will sweeten his coffee with sugar grown in this country or with imported sugar; and that cost is made up of the cost of distribution, plus cost of production. Anything that makes the marketing of domestic sugar more efficient and less wasteful and expensive will strengthen its hold with the public.

The federal farm board should find assisting the domestic beet and cane producers all the more agreeable because they have no exportable surplus problem that can be aggravated by over-planting, as the wheat growers have. About 2,000,000,000 pounds of beet and cane sugar are produced in this country annually—or less than one-sixth of the nation's annual consumption of more than 13,000,000,000 pounds. There is still abundant room for a large increase in production before the farm board will have to wrestle with the curtailment of acreage question. The country will gain by all the assistance and encouragement the board can give to the beet and cane growers.

PREVENTING NOISE

That New York's noise abatement commission is going about its work in a practical way is indicated, among other things, by the appointment of a committee of five manufacturers of automobile horns, whose duty it will be to co-operate with the city officials in drawing up specifications for horns which will give all the warning that is necessary without making the wail and everything else ring with their raucous notes. This is a step in the right direction. If this particular phase of noise abatement fails the manufacturers making up the committee will have a hard time alibing themselves.

Too many of the sporadic attempts to reduce noise in the larger cities have never gone beyond the point of theorizing, because those at the head of the movement either did not know how to, or were unable to, establish contacts that could accomplish something. The scientific study of noise conducted in New York has been on a comprehensive basis. It revealed Manhattanites dwelling in a din which at certain places is so deafening that a lion could roar and scarcely be heard, a condition which is approximated in almost any large American city where noisemaking is regarded as part of the day's business. How much of this is essential, and how much is superfluous, is a question that the New York investigators seem capable of determining with sufficient accuracy to permit the formulation of drastic recommendations along certain lines, at least. Their efficiency was increased through the co-operation of the health department and public service corporations in making surveys, and tabulating the findings.

The difficult part of the campaign lies ahead. Determining causes is a comparatively simple matter. Correcting them is something else, especially in a country where noise has come to be mistakenly regarded as an index of surpassing energy, and silence is considered something to be courted only by the aged and infirm. But whatever is accomplished in New York will be watched with interest by long-suffering dwellers in other cities as indicating what is possible in the way of reform.

The WAY of the WORLD

By GROVE PATTERSON

A GREEK SKYSCRAPER

Athens is to have a skyscraper—sixteen stories high. That wouldn't rape the sky in America; perhaps it will in Greece. Since the great Greek Pericles lived, 300 years before Christ, Athens has changed much. Then, art, literature, beauty occupied a larger place in the minds of leaders than it does today. One asks: has Greece changed for the better? To know the answer would be to know whether today's civilization is better than yesterday's. One thing we can be sure of: civilization does not rest on tall buildings.

DEEDS—WITHOUT NOISE

William Wilson Cook gave the University of Michigan about $10,000,000 before he died. After his death it was found he had left the same school $12,000,000 more. Cook, having been graduated in 1882, never went back to see the college or his old friends. Even when the magnificent Lawyers' Club, which he gave, was dedicated he didn't return. His aloofness was strange. One wonders why he didn't go back and take a bow or sit on the stage at commencement time and tune in on the applause. Most of us, talking much about our love and loyalty to this institution or that, give little. We hear much about deeds without words but see little. Here is a strange, an amazing example.

RUN TO THE "COPP"

New York policemen and kids go on a big picnic together. "These expeditions are good things," says the police commissioner. "They teach the kids to come to the cops instead of running away from them."

The policeman is the boys' friend, if the boys are on the square.

THE REALITIES

College girls are studying the realities of social work in New York this summer. They have been reading about social service in books during the college year. They have the theory. Now they will get a chance at practice. Too bad more of us can't have contact with life as it is instead of getting so many of our opinions from books. Too bad so many preachers tell us about life, from the pulpit, without being sure what life is like.

Senator Heflin was at that time a member of the house of representatives, and voted for the resolution proposing the eighteenth amendment to the state legislatures.

Lifting Power

Which gives the more lifting power, the upper or the lower side of an airplane wing? Why?

All the lift is developed on the upper side of the wing, because the camber or bulge of the upper surface in passing through the air creates air currents and air pressures that lift the plane.

Flying the Flag

Are there any laws prohibiting the flying of the United States flag over a private business building?

There are no such laws, every citizen being entitled to display the flag; however, the regulations concerning the manner in which the flag is to be flown must be observed.

The Carmack Case

Who was the man named Carmack who was involved in an assassination some years ago?

Edward Ward Carmack was the victim of the assassination. A Tennessee politician who had served several terms in congress, he was shot in Nashville, Nov. 9, 1908, by Robin J. Cooper, the son of his bitter political enemy.

Finger Prints

Will the finger from which skin is removed make the same print after healing that it did before injury?

The print would be a scar print if the entire skin was removed. If only the upper layer of the skin were removed, the print might not be affected. The extent of injury is the controlling factor in this case.

Removing Lint

How can lint produced by laundering be removed from clothes?

The removal of lint can be accomplished through shaking or brushing the clothes. Accumulation of lint on clothes in laundering can be avoided through washing small quantities of clothes at one time, using milder soaps, and by cutting the time that clothes are left in a washer.

Hubert Vallee

Is Rudy Vallee the singer's correct name?

He was christened Hubert Vallee.

FLEETING FAME

The bungh round the table in the Anen Corner at Calamity Burke's place were talking about Fame.

A drunk from an adjoining table staggered over.

"Which one o' you ever heard th' name o' th' guy who thought up the Walk-a-Mile slogan?" he inquired.

None of us had ever heard it.

"Wa-a-al," drawled the drunk, socratically, "that's Fame!"

CLASSIFIED

"Obey that impulse and give this little girl a big hand," read the classified ad. "Leaving for Hollywood, at once. Must sacrifice beautiful furnishings, little three-room apartment. Not a scratch on the piano or a chip out of any of the Chippendales. No reasonable offer refused."

I shoved the advertisement under the retrotous nose of Longacre Lil, craving comment.

"Th' same old story," sighed Lil, massaging her scalp with the end of her jade cigarette holder.

"After three months on th' coast she'll be back" writing another ad.

Instead of "Give this little girl a big hand," it will be "Give this little girl an active scrubbin' brush!"

I told her I thought she was Hard.

"Th' same old story," sighed Lil,

"I got to be," she replied, "in order to pay for th' hot groceries!"

THERE IS NO SPOT ON EARTH IMMUNE FROM EARTHQUAKES SAYS GEOPHYSICAL EXPERT

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON.—Suppose Manhattan island were to be shaken by a good, hard earthquake.

Modern steel construction can stand a deal rougher treatment than old-fashioned masonry.

Nevertheless, a severe earthquake would be sure to rattle a vast quantity of tile and terra-cotta from the skeletons even of our most up-to-date skyscrapers.

Moreover, although New York's more important buildings of today are all steel-framed, a great proportion of its architecture still is brick-and-mortar. A terrible jolt would crack it in some fresh place? Or where the new crack might be expected to occur?

SPORT SNAP SHOTS

FRAMED by Phil

The three-day shortship circuit racing program at the Greene County Fair this August gives every indication of living up to the high standard that has always been the rule at the local track. Four stake races with purses aggregating $2,000 will feature a card that will be exceptionally attractive.

Some fast harness is entered. For example, Legality, the son of Lawful, a promising colt of the string of H. M. Parshall, Urbana reinsman, entered in the three-year-old trotting stake, recently was the winner of the 2:16 trot at the Grand Circuit program at Kalamazoo, Mich. The race was worth $2,000 and Legality won the first two heats in the fast time of 1:05½ and 2:06¾. You can't call that slow.

Then take the 2:18 trotting stake which has twenty-two entries. General Walker, owned by A. Y. Call, Wheaton, Ill., one of the nominees, made a good showing the other day at Kalamazoo, taking third money in a 2:16 trot and finishing fifth, second and third, respectively in three heats. Locke Bunter, entry of R. W. Pitkin, Mt. Vernon, finished fourth three straight times in the same race. The best time recorded was 2:04¾.

The 2:18 pace and the three-year-old pace each has twenty-two nominations and the three-year-old trot, twenty-four.

Believe it or not, another miniature golf course is to be built in Xenia, which will make three in all. The latest midget links is backed by Xenia capital and will be constructed for the exclusive use of East End residents on E. Main St., not far from the standard. It will be an eighteen-hole links. Work will be started at once and the course will be rushed through to completion in ten days or two weeks if possible. We hereby serve notice that we are going to erect a high fence around our back yard to keep people from getting in and building a course there. This one spot, at least, shall remain sacred. Not that we dislike them. We played ourselves the other night. Not very good. Still, we played.

"Polly" Parrett is thinking seriously of taking up Thomas Thumb golf as a means of livelihood. Maybe it was beginner's luck, but Polly negotiated the difficult "Bobby D." miniature course on N. Decatur St. in forty-seven strokes, one over par, on opening night. As a result he received $250 in gold, thereby losing his amateur standing. He was one under par on the fourth, tenth, sixteenth, seventeenth and eighteenth holes and had an ace on the tenth. The last nine of the eighteen holes are the hardest but Polly was two under par. "Skipper" Finlay had a card of fifty, the second best score.

The Cincinnati Reds, on which subject we have remained silent for too long, are back in favor with Xenia fans, so much so that we have it on good authority that a group of local fans has ordered sixteen tickets for Sunday's doubleheader at Redland Field. What beautiful faith.

LANG BASE HITS TOLL DIRGE FOR DOWNTOWNER'S TITLE HOPES

Funeral services for the National League championship hopes of the Downtown Country Club were conducted at the athletic field Tuesday night with the Lang Chevrolet softballers officiating at the last rites.

Using the prostrate body of the second-place Downowners as a stepping stone, Langs practically clinched the league title by registering a bewilderingly easy 7 to 1 victory, giving the coming league champions a lead of two full games over the field with only four more to play.

The right arm of John Gibney, ace of the Lang pitching staff, held the Downowners in complete submission from beginning to end and had it not been for wild throw in the seventh inning he would have received credit for a well deserved shutout triumph. Gib permitted only seven hits.

Not a Downtown batter progressed as far as the third station in the first six rounds but in the seventh LeSourd led off with a single. Lunsford fled to right and LeSourd took second after the catch. When Eavey popped to deep second the runner started for third and came all the way home because Joe Smittle pegged wildly over third.

The Theater

Before showing "Grumpy," with Cyril Maude, at the little theater on the Paramount lot where every Wednesday night the critics are allowed to peep at pictures before they are released to the public, they put on "For The Defense," with William Powell.

Now Powell is a fine actor, and one of the best in films, but he looks like a beginner compared to Maude. Of course Maude has been an actor years longer than Powell but it was surprising to see the screen actor look so small in comparison.

Both stories were character studies and in neither of them is plot predominating. Powell takes the part of a criminal lawyer, he

"Where Roses Bloom." The film is being produced at the Paramount studios in Paris and is supervised by Robert T. Katz. Swen has appeared in silent pictures in Sweden.

Do you know that Jobyna Howland, who appears in "The Cuckoos," is the tallest comedienne in motion pictures, being 5 feet two inches and weighing almost 200 pounds?

Jack Mulhall, Sally Starr and Elliott Nugent are heading the cast of "For the Love of Lil," the final production on Columbia's 1929-30 schedule. The story is based on J. Leslie Thrasher's well-known cover illustration which appears on Liberty Magazine each week.

oved of the lower classes of the underworld because he takes their part and save many of them from neck stretching and for the same reason is hated by the district attorney. Everything is subordinated to show the cleverness and complete mastery of the situation by Powell, the lawyer. Powell is admirable.

Then the petulant, lovable extremely interesting Grump came on the screen. Again pure characterization, built around a rather melodramatic story, prevailed and Maude's performance was so polished, so complete, that one felt sorry for Powell. One of the film art's most accomplished offspring, couldn't touch the stage's Maude.

Jean Hersholt returns to his old stamping grounds by signing with Universal for two pictures in which he will probably work at the same time. He has an important role in "The Cat Creeps," which is modernized version of "The Cat and the Canary" and also "East is West." Raymond Hackett from M.-M., Neil Hamilton and Lilyan Tashman also play in "The Cat Creeps" and Lupe Velez and Lew Ayres will be featured in "East is West."

Swen Garbo, brother of Greta Garbo, is working in his first talking picture in Europe. He has been signed by Paramount to appear in an all-Swedish talking picture, felt that the underworld had put Buckley on the spot because it realized that he, in a large measure, had been responsible for the mayor's defeat, and it feared a new administration would change the set-up through which Detroit was coming to be known throughout the nation as a "wide open town."

GIRL WRITER FINDS DETROIT RESENTS GANGLAND CHARGE

Hardly had Buckley been laid in his coffin when Police Commissioner Thomas Wilcox, told the reporters that he had an affidavit in his possession from a bootlegger, Frank Chock, who swore that Buckley had induced him to go into bootlegging and then attempted to collect $4,000 from him. When reporters located Chock he said he could not read English and had not understood what he was signing. He further insisted that Buckley was his friend and never had attempted to extort money from him.

What Bowles Says

Major Bowles told this reporter he believed Buckley was a racketeer, saying: "I received word many times that radio attacks upon me would cease if I paid a certain sum of money."

Friends of Buckley are indignant over the attempts to prove him an intimate of gangsters, involved in their transactions, and they insist the efforts to prove him a racketeer are a smoke screen. Prosecutor James Chenot likewise protests against the efforts of the police department to find a motive for the slaying. "The immediate necessity is to discover Jerry Buckley's murderer—not the motive for his death."

Harold H. Emmons, Detroit's deposed police commissioner, shares the reluctance of many Detroiters to tell the Michigan city's story, outside its boundaries. "I think we should work out our problems without publishing our troubles for the world to read," he avers. "We've taken the first step toward cleaning up Detroit, and I believe we'll take the final one in September."

Emmons and the mayor have been bitter enemies since Bowles asked for his resignation as police commissioner when he conducted vice raids during the mayor's absence at the Kentucky Derby. At that time Emmons charged that the police department was being made a political tool and that Detroit was being run by the underworld. Emmons is expected to be a candidate for mayor.

Deny Underworld Control

In going over events leading up to the slaying of Jerry Buckley, Commissioner Wilcox pauses to deny reports of underworld control. "Our recent batch of killings has been entirely made up of foreign alcohol war shootings," he avers, "which will break out from time to time. In my two months of office we have put 1,100 blind pigs out of commission; closed 400 gambling houses and have either sent to jail or fined 200 prostitutes. During the first six months of the year we have had twenty-three fewer homicides and 276 less cases of armed robbery than in the same period last year."

"Does that look as if Detroit is at the mercy of the underworld? Conditions are far from being as bad here as they are in Chicago and the good people of Detroit aren't leaving their homes in fear."

SPECIAL FEATURES WILL MAKE COUNTY FAIR ATTRACTIVE

Several features of the Greene County Fair will receive special emphasis this year. The organization floats, always a feature of the live stock parade, will again bring out a number of artistic floats which will be entered by organizations in the county. The young ladies baking exhibit is a feature that will prove that the modern young woman is holding her own in the domestic arts and is probably a far better cook than her grandmother was at her same age.

The attention that is being given to the building of healthy bodies will be demonstrated in the health contest which will be a feature of the children's department. The girl's style show is another program that will also draw special attention.

Farmers will be deeply interested in the corn borer demonstration which will show the steps that are being taken to protect the crops of Greene County against this devastating pest. The Grange exhibits will also be a center of interest to the farm organization members, and the inter-county quilt tournament will draw quilt fans from the surrounding counties. The race track will furnish the high spots in the four-day program with the 2:18 trot, for a purse of $600 as a big drawing card. The midway attractions will furnish entertainment for every one and all tastes will find some features at the Fair that will interest and entertain, it is said.

Troop 41, Boy Scouts of America, will hold an overnight camp Wednesday evening. Scouts are asked to meet at the council ring at 6 p.m. and to bring food and mess kit in order to pass the first class cooking test.

The regular troop meeting will be held in the council ring at 7:30 o'clock, after which a camp fire and program will be held. All Scouts intending to remain over night are asked to bring blankets and tents.

JULY 24, 1930—On the firing range.

We have been on the firing range for two days now and are doing our record firing today. So far the boys have been displaying pretty good form under the tutelage of Captain Cornwell and Second Lieutenants Swindler, both expert shots on any range or distance. We won't know just how good we are until the Company comes in off the range this noon but you all can prepare yourself for tomorrow's report.

The quartermaster has been having it pretty easy for the past few days but last evening signed an order for twenty rookies who were hunting for a pint of revelry of a piece and two tent jacks for each tent. Hail the long face on one of the boys who reports that he reached the Regimental Supply Office this morning just too late. Everything in the line that he wanted had just been palmed out to his unsuspecting comrades.

The woodpile beside the mess shack has been growing steadily for two nights now. Ask the rookies about it when we get back to the old home town on the third of August. Sergeant Frame affirms that in about two more days we should have enough wood cut to last until the next war anyhow or at least until he gets his major's commission. But that's not very limiting for from the fine way in which he has served the company it ought not be very long until something in the line of a promotion for him will come off.

Sergeant Frame and Sergeant Hindebrecht were discussing cars, tires, carburetors and other auto accessories when Mess Sergeant Gill came up to chirp in his bit. Presently there was quite a crowd collected for the bull session and the talk got around to tire covers. "Langs usually have a pretty good quality cover," some mentor put in.

"The heck they do," whined "Slough" Jones, son of one of Captain Cornwell's right hand men on the police force. "My old man got one about two weeks ago and put it on the front tire we hadn't gone over five miles when the darn thing was worn clean through."

Everyone who wants to know all there ain't about cars now go to "Slough" for their information.

The cooling breezes that we told you about the other day have all left town. As long as they had to go somewhere when they left here we all hope that they're all calling on youse right now. It really must be torrid out there on the range this morning. Hope it doesn't cut down the shooting efficiency of the men!

Why not write us a few letters, folks? The mails' been terribly slow coming in and we're getting pretty lonesome not hearing from the home folks. Get our your paper and pens and get busy! Any one who is interested in the company ought to write a general letter to the whole Company sometime while we are in camp whether or not they have any one in the organization.

Address all such mail to the Company Clerk and he will pass it out to those who aren't as fortunate as some of the others in receiving mail. Or better still get the name of someone from a party who is better acquainted with the roll of the company and write him a letter. We'll promise you'll hear from us promptly if you write, even just a few lines.

Ho is our Armory coming along in our absence? You know folks it won't be very long after we get back until we go into the new Armory and then we're going to give a big opening party if it can be arranged, won't that be swell?

Company "L" was happy to find some other Xenians in Camp besides ourselves. There are four or five boys from the O. S. and S. O. Home, working in the officer's mess. They're having a great time too they say.

The week is certainly going fast. I suppose that it is because of the fact that there is so much to do during the day both when the Company drills and later in the days when athletics and divers other amusements take ones time and in Probate Court.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., July 30.—Her name isn't Marie. And it is not Dressler. Its Leila Kooper. Borrowed her stage name from her aunt in Germany she had never seen.

Was born in Corburg, Canada, of an English mother and German father. Which explains why she is such a swell American.

During a trip to London recently one newspaper gave her age as 61, another as 63, and still another as 65. Decided she had better leave before she was carried home on a stretcher. Claims that despite the fact that there were fifty-eight candles on her last birthday cake, she is still a flapper.

At age of 3, tripped over a rug. Everybody laughed. That settled her career. Has played life as straight comedy ever since.

Has no picture of herself at early age to prove she ever was a child. Was such an ugly duckling that she was never included in family album. Once day a visitor coming across a picture of Marie's sister and cousin, posing with a rope of a sled, of which only the front was visible, asked Marie where she was in the picture. "Oh, I am sitting on the sled," was her blithely retort.

Childhood ambition was either to be chariot driver or wear gauzy costumes as a bareback rider.

Started Acting At 14.

Joined stock company at age of 14 to win a pair of comfort slippers for her mother. First part was "Cigarette" in "Under Two Flags." Expected Bernhardt to retire when she heard of it.

Made her picture debut in "Tillie's Punctured Romance." Charlie Chaplin and Mabel Normand were included in her supporting cast. Had quit the stage and screen for good but curiosity and conceit brought her back. Couldn't resist the temptation of being herself again.

Recently was given a luncheon at the Savoy in London at which forty-five of the leading critics came to pay her homage. Considers her London ovation the greatest triumph of her entire career. Once upon a time she was barred from that city.

Splendid Cook.

Is sure she was meant to be a housefrau. Can cook a meal that would do Oscar of the Waldorf proud. Her specialties are codfish balls, tomato soup and clam chowder. Adores cutting a dress out of nothing and making it for someone. Will pay $350 for a dress for herself at a fashionable modiste, and then re-make the whole thing to suit herself.

During the war made 149 speeches in twenty-nine days. The only speech she ever prepared beforehand and memorized verbatim, she forgot as soon as she reached the platform.

Knows where the ice-box is in the White House. Has met Presidents Cleveland, McKinley, Roosevelt, Taft, Wilson, Harding, Coolidge and Hoover. Is also on intimate acquaintances with all royalty, which explains why she sang "I Am the Queen" so effectively in "The Hollywood Revue."

Has been married twice. Would like to find a nice millionaire now but suspects Peggy Joyce has beaten her to it.

Contends that amusing stories are the greatest boon in life. Hopes that when she is being carried to her last resting place, she can remember a good one.

Six years ago, in her autobiography, "The Life Story of an Ugly Duckling," she wrote, "I have the blood of explorers in my veins. I have no sense of having ended my career but rather of having begun it."
